ACLU Intake Counselor Internships Presently Accepting Applications

Intake Counselor internships are available in the legal department of the American Civil Liberties Union of Washington Foundation. A six month commitment is required, with a minimum of 12 hours each week.

Interns review and investigate complaints alleging violations of civil liberties and assist callers on the ACLU Intake and Referral Line. They work closely with ACLU legal staff and address a broad spectrum of issues, including free speech, student discipline, police practices, criminal law, and jail and prison conditions.

Intake Counselor interns will learn interview and investigation skills, explore a variety of civil liberties and constitutional law issues, and become familiar with the work of a wide range of government agencies and community organizations. The Intake Counselor internship provides excellent experience for students contemplating careers in public service, law, or public policy.

Applicants should have an interest in civil liberties, good interpersonal and analytical skills, and excellent writing skills. Spanish language proficiency is a plus. To apply, please submit a cover letter, résumé, list of three references, and a writing sample of approximately five pages in length by September 4, 2009, to: legal@aclu-wa.org or to 705 Second Avenue, Suite 300, Seattle, WA 98104. E-mail legal@aclu-wa.org with any questions.

The ACLU is an equal opportunity employer; people of color, LGTB people, and people with disabilities are especially encouraged to apply.
