POLITICAL SCIENCE HONORS PROGRAM

The Honors Program is a program of advanced study in political science for undergraduates who wish to pursue a challenging course of study in their junior and senior year. Students get the opportunity to design and conduct their own research project under the supervision of a faculty adviser. Students gain in-depth knowledge and an understanding of key theoretical and empirical debates in the field of political science. Students acquire research design skills and the ability to work independently on a major research project. The honors thesis program also gives students the opportunity to work closely with faculty, similar to a graduate school experience.

Students completing this program will earn 'Honors in Political Science' at graduation. Students who are in the University Honors Program as well as in the Political Science Honors Program will earn 'College Honors in Political Science' at graduation.

HONORS PROGRAM

Program Requirements

- Pol S 487, Political Science Honors Seminar (5 credits), spring quarter, minimum grade of 3.3.
- Pol S 488, Honors Thesis Design Seminar (5 credits), autumn quarter, minimum grade of 3.3.
- Pol S 489, Honors Thesis Writing (5 credits), winter quarter, minimum grade of 3.3.

Honors Seminars

The Honors program starts in spring quarter and ends the following winter quarter. Students accepted into the program take Pol S 487 in spring then Pol S 488 in autumn. Students earn 5 credits for each seminar (a total of 10 credits) and must earn a minimum grade of 3.3 in each course. Both seminars will count toward major requirements as a field or an elective course.

Honors Thesis

Students write an honors thesis in winter quarter (Pol S 489) under the supervision of a faculty member in Political Science or an approved faculty member from another program. Students must earn a minimum grade of 3.3 in the course in order to graduate with honors. While this course does not count toward the political science major, it will count as writing credit.

Honors Program Eligibility Requirements

To be considered for admission to the Political Science Honors Program, students must meet the following requirements:

- major in Political Science
- five courses in political science (may have four courses completed with the fifth in progress when applying to the program)
- minimum 3.5 GPA in the Political Science major
HONORS APPLICATION

Applications for the 2020-21 program are open.

There are two components to the honors application: I) an online Honors Data Form and II) your supporting materials packet, submitted by email. Submit your application no later than 5:00pm, Monday, January 27th, 2020. Incomplete and late applications will NOT be accepted.

I. Honors Data Form
Access the Honors Data Form here.

II. Supporting Materials (submit by email)
In addition to the online form, submit the following supporting materials by email as pdf attachments: an essay, a resume, a sample paper, and an unofficial UW transcript. Send these documents in ONE email to tamars@uw.edu and jasonm@uw.edu with Pol S Honors in the subject line. Do not send each document in separate emails. Incomplete and late emails will not be considered.

1) Essay
Your essay should be double spaced and no more than two pages. Explain why you are applying to the Political Science Honors Program and what you hope to achieve by pursuing honors. Include the areas of research that interest you and how your past courses have contributed to those interests along with your preparedness to do independent research. If you have ideas for your thesis, you may include that information as well. At this point, you do not need to have a prepared thesis topic.

2) Resume
Attach your resume and include at least two and up to three instructors and/or TAs who can provide the selection committee with information about your coursework and contributions to class. This is a list of references only. They do not need to write letters of recommendation.

For assistance with writing or feedback about your resume, refer to the following resources:

- Career and Internship Center Drop In Coaching for feedback from a career or peer counselor
- Pol S/JSIS/LSJ Writing Center, for feedback from a Writing Center tutor

3) Paper written for a class
Attach a copy of a paper that you wrote for a class (may include instructor comments and your grade, but this is not required). A paper written for a Political Science course is preferred but not required. Submit one paper only. Choose the paper that best demonstrates your research and writing skills. Do not submit answers to essay questions from an exam. If you have only a printed copy of your paper, you may use the Political Science Computer Lab in SMI 220 to scan your paper. There is no cost for this service.

4) Unofficial UW Transcript
Access your unofficial transcript in your MyUW account and attach it as a pdf document in the email.

Some applicants may be contacted to schedule an interview with the Honors Committee. All applicants will be notified by email regarding their acceptance into the program by the end of winter quarter.

If you have any questions about the application, please contact the Pol S Advising Office at polsadvc@uw.edu.

LEV AWARD FOR BEST HONORS THESIS

Students participating in the honors program are eligible to compete for the Lev Award, which recognizes the best honors thesis written each year. It is named after Daniel Lev, a longtime political science professor at UW.
and founder of the department's honors program.

Submission deadline: Honors students wanting to compete for it must submit an electronic copy of their thesis to the honors program advisor no later than 4:00pm sharp on the first Friday of May. Late submissions will not be considered.

A review committee of political science faculty members evaluates the submissions and makes the award. The review process parallels, to the extent possible, the blind peer review process used for journal article submissions in the social sciences. This means that students' names are removed before their theses are sent to the review committee, and the review committee normally does not include the honors program director or the faculty advisors of the submitting students.
