TODAY: THE PARIS CLIMATE TALKS: WHAT'S AT STAKE?

Submitted by Caterina Rost on November 30, 2015 - 9:30am

The Paris Climate Talks: What's at Stake?

Monday, November 30th, 5:00pm-6:20pm in Gowen 301

From November 30th-December 11th, 2015, an international Conference on Climate Change (COP21) is being held in Paris. World leaders will be participating in a UN discussion on what action needs to be taken by countries to address the environmental challenges we now face as a global community.

Join us on campus Monday evening for a panel and discussion on the upcoming Paris Climate Talks with UW experts on climate change and environmental concerns. Learn more about the important meeting of world leaders in Paris, how you are affected, and how you can be involved.

Please RSVP here and submit any questions you would like to pose to our panelists.

Joining us for the panel will be:

Dr. Sara Curran, International Studies
Lara Binder, UW Climate Impacts Group
Alex Lenferna, Ph.D. Candidate in Philosophy, Divest UW

We look forward to seeing you there!