

CONTEMPORARY FEMINIST THEORY

GWSS
455

The course examines concepts in contemporary feminist theory, focusing particularly closely on the theme of coalition politics.

Together, we will examine the possibilities and challenges of feminist coalition politics that work to link racial, class, sexual, gender, and disability justice movements. In exploring this theme, we will ask a variety of theoretical and political questions related to solidarity and alliance, subjectivity, and group identity as well as examine ways in which feminist commitments to coalitional activism have shaped approaches to feminist scholarship.